HOW A COACHING BLOCK RUNS

1

The call. Your goals, your history, your dates. We tell you honestly whether coaching, a course or a training block is the right next step.

2

Diagnosis first. Day one is your technique, your equalisation and your mindset on video, so we work from what is actually happening.

3

Daily sessions, evening debrief. A plan that adapts as you progress, with video review after each session.

FORMATS

- Half day: one coached session on the platform, with video review and debrief.
- Full day: two sessions, or one long session built around a deep dive.
- Multi-day block: built around your trip, and around one of our three competitions if you want a target.

MULTI-DAY BLOCK

EVERY SESSION INCLUDES

- Your coach in the water with you, planning and safetying every dive
- Technique and equalisation diagnosis, filmed and reviewed with you
- The Blue Element platform: counter-ballasted line, sonar tracking and surface oxygen

Who is coaching for?

Any certified freediver with a goal: a first 30 m, a competition number, or an equalisation ceiling that will not move. Tell us your level and recent numbers on the call.

Can I mix coaching with training days?

Yes. Many divers take coached sessions around autonomous platform days, or elite support for the deep ones. We build the mix on the call.

Who coaches?

The Blue Element team: world championship athletes, national record holders and divers past 90 m, who train on this line all season.

How do I book?

Book a half day online at blueelementstore.com/book. For the call, use blueelementstore.com/enquire or send us a couple of times that suit you on WhatsApp.

Prices are per person in USD. Full days and multi-day blocks are quoted after the call, because the right block depends on your goals and dates. Published at blueelementstore.com, October 2026.
